Gaby Borges

J: Alright so, how old were you when you started singing and acting?
G: Before I started singing and acting, I started dancing when I was 3 years old, and singing when I was 6 years old and acting when I was 9 years old

J: Wow, so you started early.
G: Yeah! I did

J: What keeps you inspired?
G: I think everything I do is something that I've always loved to do. And I can't picture myself not doing what I'm doing. I think if I had to live life again I would totally do it over. Totally keep singing, and keep acting.

J: What do you prefer doing more singing or writing songs?
G: Well, writing songs- I just started. And I love it. I'm going to keep on writing songs, and you know singing is something that I've always done. I can't really decide, they're two different things.

J: So this is a sensitive question, answer truthfully! What do your friends think of your fame?
G: Most of my friends support me, but then there's some that always ask this question. "Why?" So let's say I'm going to record a song, so they'll be like, "Why are you going to record a song?

J: Alright, do you still get nervous performing on TV?
G: All the time.

J: Still?
G: All the time. I could be doing anything, like a photo shoot, where I don't even have to talk, I get nervous. I feel like if you don't get nervous, you don't get that feeling of "Oh my God, I'm gonna do this."

J: How did you like Los Angeles? What is different?
G: I love Los Angeles. When I went it was amazing. What's different is the weather; during the day it's hot and then at night it's colder. I like that, you get the mix of both. The people were also amazing; hopefully I can live there one day.

J: What is your favorite song to sing?
G: My favorite song to sing… That's a hard one. Now it's probably Justin Bieber. And 'Life is worth living', definitely.

J: Do you have any pastimes besides writing music?
G: Well, I go ice-skating, I'm an equestrian, I ride horses, I go shooting with my dad.

J: Have you ever been starstruck?
G: I have actually. I met Austin Mahone, that was pretty cool, and also Justin Bieber followed me on Twitter, so that was cool too.

J: Do you have any advice for someone younger than you trying to make it big?
G: Si tienes un sueño, lucha por el, porque todo en la vida es posible. Which means if you have a dream, follow it because everything is possible.

J: So no one should give up.
G: This career is really hard, there's a lot of rejection and I'm still here. I'm not going to give up.

J: What has been your favorite thing to film?
G: Definitely has to be Eva Luna. It was my first big project, it was awesome. It was with huge actors and the rating was really good for that soap opera.

J: What are your role models?
G: Sia, Adele, Justin Bieber.

J: Currently, besides singing and dancing, do you play any instruments?
G: Yes, I play the guitar and the piano.

J: Where do you hope to see yourself in 10 years?
G: Tours! I just want to do tours. Tour around the world.

Joel Someillan

G: What other producers, songwriters, and/or artists do you see as your primary inspirations?

J: The Beatles are my inspiration because their music is kind of like the musical bible that everything else follows.

G: Do you have a favorite musical project that you've worked on?

J: Gaby Borges.

G: Oh you can be real, just because I'm here!

J: Probably my current project is my favorite, with a local band called Sun Ghosts. They're a phenomenal, real band.

G: Is there an artist you wish to work with that you have not yet?

J: Paul McCartney. [Or maybe] Justin Bieber. I'd probably change him up completely. Like if I did a song with him, it would be totally different.

G: How different? How would you change it?

J: I'd make him sing more acoustic country rock.

G: How was it like working with Gaby?

J: I love working with you. As I mentioned before, I like working with real artists.

G: Do you have any advice for young people who want to make it big?

J: Everybody is special in his or her own way, you need to express your realness.

G: How did you get started in the music & entertainment industry?

J: It stated because my dad left his guitar lying around one day and I would stare at this strange object that I should do something with it. Back then there was only 4 channels on Tv, no Netflix, no youtube, so once I started playing it and making music with my hands it felt so good, so real.

G: How do you value studio time? How do you get what you need to get done, done?

J: Studio time is very valuable, because you only get a limited amount of time with the artist. The producer should be transparent.

G: In your life what experiences have been most important to you that related to music producing?

J: Organization, learning to recognize a moment that is special.

G: Do you enjoy producing or songwriting more?

J: They're two different things. Song writing is great, and the production part I love because everything we wrote we got to work on.

G: Lastly, who's your favorite artist currently? t

J: You know who I really love, 5 seconds of summer! I think they're amazing, they're 4 kids with their instruments and their voices and that's it!

Belen Jesuit

Begins construction on new kitchen and cafeteria

Over 40 invited guests joined members of Belen Jesuit Preparatory School's administration, faculty, staff, and students Oct. 30 for the groundbreaking and blessing ceremony of the new kitchen and cafeteria project.

"This project, the cafeteria and kitchen renovation, has been a needed enhancement to our campus," said Jesuit Father Pedro Suarez, Belen's president. "The original facility has not changed much since it was built in 1981, when it was originally intended to feed 500 people. Today the same facilities feed a community of close to 1,500 students, plus 200 faculty and staff."

Jesuit Father Javier Vidal, provincial of the Antilles Province, and Bishop Fernando Isern, emeritus of the Diocese of Pueblo, Colorado, were on hand for this special occasion and blessed the grounds.

"We would like to recognize a very special donor who has generously supported this project and countless others throughout the years. Mrs. Nydia Rodriguez and her family serve as wonderful examples of generosity and love in our community, and we appreciate all they have done and continue to do for Belen Jesuit," said Maria Cristina Reyes-Garcia, principal.

The new multi-purpose facility will provide the school with a larger space for dining and meal preparation, as well as a modern space for learning, community meetings, and formal gatherings. The goal is to provide a more comfortable and efficient dining experience. The estimated date of completion for the entire project is the fall of 2016.

GULLIVER MIDDLE SCHOOL CHESS TEAM

CORAL GABLES, FL. - December 18, 2015 - Gulliver is thrilled to announce that three of its chess teams finished in the top five at the United States Chess Federation's 2015 National K-12 Championships. With more than 1,500 chess players from around the nation competing, Gulliver fielded teams in various divisions at the weekend-long event, held earlier this month in Orlando.

"I am extremely proud of the performance of our chess teams," said Randall Smith, coach of the Gulliver Chess team and chair of Gulliver's Middle School mathematics department. "This is a very difficult sport that requires great logic, critical and analytical thinking skills and our students are a true representation of the benefits of chess in schools."

Gulliver's chess program focuses on encouraging analytical and thinking skills. As students develop these skills, they learn to use them to drive their decision-making - in chess and in every other area of their lives. The program builds on research that shows how chess improves children's critical thinking and problem-solving skills, including research from America's Foundation for Chess (AF4C) that shows chess players demonstrate higher math and reading test scores. Gulliver's program seeks to help students develop skills that are key to success in the 21st century.

Monsignor Pace High School

Inducts 63 Students into National Honor Society

By Rene D. Basulto

63 students from Monsignor Edward Pace High School put on their best suits and dresses to celebrate their induction into Pace's chapter of the National Honor Society on December 3. The NHS Induction Ceremony is an annual tradition taking place inside the school's Spartan Center where exceptional students are officially welcomed into the organization. Students must exhibit NHS' four pillars of scholastic performance, service, leadership skills, and overall character in order to be invited by a faculty council to join.

25 sophomores, 24 juniors, and 14 seniors (one of the largest induction groups in the past several years) were welcomed into the society at the 2015 ceremony accompanied by their parents and their fellow NHS peers. The evening began with speeches from Pace Principal Ana Garcia and NHS adviser Luis Mayo congratulating both the students and their parents on their journey to this moment. The NHS student executive board then spoke in turn about each of the four pillars and NHS President Maya Lora asked the new inductees to rise and read the NHS induction pledge together.

Following this, the inductees were called up to the stage one-by-one to be presented with their certificates and to light their individual candle in a traditional ritual with their grade level. After prayer, the evening concluded with dinner and desert for the inductees and their families.

Confirmation

By: Anabell Alfonso

The ideal day to be confirmed would consist of a crisp, cool November morning with clear, blue skies and clouds that look like cotton. However, our confirmation was on a drab, gray, morning with a drizzle that put a damper on the whole occasion. Nonetheless, the Holy Spirit was still present that day. Good Shepherd's 8th grade class was confirmed on November 14, 2015. It was a momentous day where we confirmed our beliefs and began our lives as new men and women to the Catholic faith. In addition, we renewed our baptismal promises and completed our sacraments of Initiation.

Our preparation for Confirmation began the day when we were baptized and accepted into the church. Once we are old enough to grasp the meaning of the sacrament of confirmation, we are asked to pick a saint name that we would aspire to be like. In the New Testament, when you were changing your name you were changing your identity; therefore, our Saint name had to be someone we would relate to.

Then the time came. The music commenced, and we began our journey into the adulthood of the Catholic Church. The mass began with a blessing from the archbishop. We read from the scripture and listened intently to the homily. We were presented as the Confirmandi of 2015 and we began the anointing. The archbishop anointed us with the chrism oil. He said our chosen Saint name along with,"Be sealed with the gift of the Holy Spirit." No angels came down from heaven and proclaimed that we were now confirmed, but like all confirmandi, we were blessed with the seven gifts of the Holy Spirit - Knowledge, Fortitude, Piety, Fear of the Lord, Wisdom, Understanding, and Counsel. When we were anointed with the Chrism oil, we immediately receive these seven gifts.

One thing we will never forget is how we took those first steps accepting our role in the Catholic faith. On confirmation we focus on the confirmandi, but we must give a special thanks to our parents, sponsors, everyone who supported us, and our teacher - Mr. Pages - who prepared us to continue our faith. Confirmation is not a check list; it's a door that was opened, allowing us to continue our faith.

Noticias de Raquel Regalado

La última reunión del año 2015 de la Junta Escolar de Miami-Dade brilló con los reconocimientos hechos por Raquel Regalado a dos organizaciones que trabajan arduamente para mejorar la calidad de vida de niños desfavorecidos a través del estudio de la música.

Los homenajeados fueron Miami Music Project y Guitars Over Guns.

Miami Music Project es una organización sin fines de lucro establecida en el 2008 con la misión de utilizar la música para capacitar a los niños de comunidades de bajos recursos para desarrollar su pleno potencial. Este proyecto musical cree firmemente que el hacer la música accesible a todos los niños resulta en una transformación social. Para lograr su misión, la organización establece grupos en vecindarios de Miami donde se les enseña a los niños a tocar instrumentos musicales. Con estos grupos se crea una red de orquestas para actuar en conciertos que conectan a estos estudiantes a la comunidad en general, rompiendo barreras, tales como el nivel socioeconómico, la cultura, el idioma, la edad y el credo.

Un estudio reciente mostró que los jóvenes que participaron en Miami Music Project mejoraron sus niveles de autoestima, liderazgo, concentración, comunicación y más, en un 80 por ciento.

Guitars Over Guns es también una organización sin fines de lucro creada en el 2008 para ofrecer a los niños de vecindarios de bajos recursos una alternativa a las pandillas y a la violencia y así permanecer en la escuela hasta graduarse de secundaria. Esta organización ofrece enseñanza a través de músicos profesionales en canto, producción musical y en una variedad de instrumentos musicales tales como la guitarra, el teclado, y la trompeta. Los estudiantes que participan en este proyecto tienen la oportunidad de mostrar sus talentos en conciertos y son animados a ver la música como algo positivo para combatir la tristeza, la frustración y la negatividad.
