Cool and Personal

Se crió y estudió en Santiago de Cuba, su ciudad natal, donde apareció en la radio por primera vez a los ocho años. Estudió Historia del Arte en la Universidad de Oriente.Fue presentador de radio y TV en Cuba, en programas como De cinco a siete, en Radio Taíno, o en el de juegos Quién sabe.

En 1998 llegó a Toronto, Canadá, donde estudió periodismo en la Escuela de Comunicación de la Universidad de York (2001-2003) y producción de televisión en el Seneca College. Comenzó a trabajar como corresponsal para la cadena internacional de noticias CNN en su versión en español haciendo reemplazos, principalmente durante los períodos de Semana Santa y Navidad.

"When I was a teen I didn't have that much options to connect globally, I used to write letters and waited probably two or three months to have a response."

"Velocity is the main challenge that the teenager generation have, because they are used to having guaranteed satisfaction immediately. So the challenge is that certain things in life they really don't come that fast ...."

"be always curious .. You have to keep learning and be surprised for everything. !!! Curiosity will bring you to your passion; passion will create a vocation..."

"Inviertan su tiempo en su crecimiento personal y de liderazgo profesional más que en el entretenimiento."

Pronto se convirtió en conductor de Calando a..., un ciclo de reportajes biográficos en Telelatino Network (TLN), de Fiesta Olé, Caliente y Viva auto, entre otros. En Canadá creó una productora que lleva su nombre.

Posteriormente se mudó a Miami, donde fue conductor invitado de Despierta América, popular show de la mañana de Univisión y trabajó como reportero para CNN en español: le tocó informar de la ejecución de Sadam Husein y el huracán Frances de 2004, lo que contribuyó a darse a conocer.

Pero el éxito le llegó al lanzar los programas ¡Qué tarde tan padre!, La oreja y Calando fuerte. Además, desde noviembre de 2007 fue conductor del programa radial matutino Ismael Cala y la jungla de la mañana de Mega 949. Productor de El mundo informa.

Desde el 22 de noviembre de 2010 hasta el 1 de julio de 2016 fue presentador del programa de entrevistas Cala, programa que lo consolidó a la fama internacional. Después de 5 años en las pantallas de CNN en Español, decidió retirarse de la televisión temporalmente para dedicarse a su carrera como conferencista y orador motivacional. En dicho programa conversó con numerosas personalidades de la política, del espectáculo, de la música, de los medios de comunicación y el deporte.

> "Social media changed totally the model of communication."

Como conferencista y orador motivacional ha recorrido una veintena de países de América y fruto de esta labor ha sido su libro el El poder de escuchar, publicado en 2013, y que lleva como subtítulo La guía esencial en tu camino al éxito. En 2014 lanzó Un buen hijo de P..., en 2015 lanza El secreto del bambú y en 2016 lanza su más reciente El alfabeto emocional. Ha recibido numerosas distinciones por su trabajo, entre las que destacan el Canadian New Pioneers Award, el Somos —al mejor comunicador del año en Toronto— o el de la Asociación de Cronistas de Espectáculos de Nueva York. (información obtenida por Wikipedia español)

> "Que nadie les diga que no se puede, ríanse de los No, Persigan sus sueños !!! Me encanta que ustedes como generación son más abiertos,con menos prejuicios , más accesos a la información que les hace entender que somos ciudadanos del mundo ..."

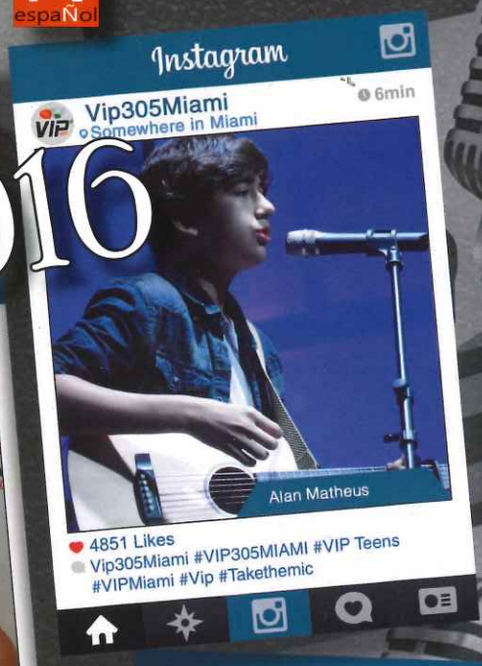

"La vida es una piñata ... Habla si vives en modo piñata o vives como líder .. La vida no pasa contra ti sino a tu favor ... La piñata vive colgada de una soga muy adornada por fuera, llena de cosas que alguien más puso adentro y esperando que una fuerza externa te quiebre.... "

TAKE the MIC! 2016

Fotografías tomadas por: Patricia García

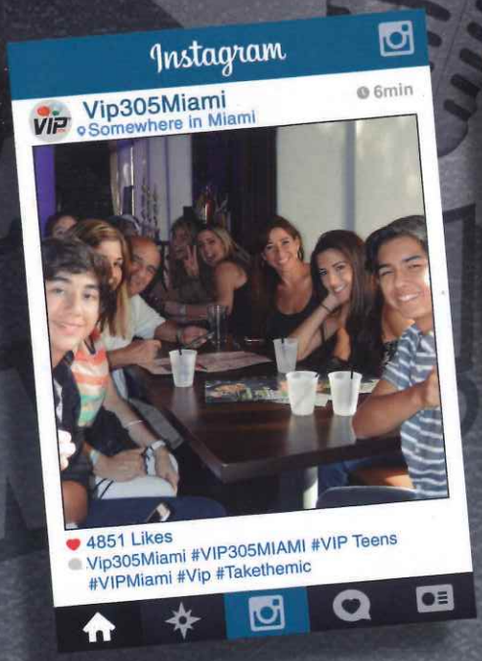

En Mayo 1ro, tuvimos el placer de presentar nuestro primer concurso de canto "Take The Mic" fue todo un éxito, un lleno total en el establecimiento de "Open Stage". Contamos con la presencia de mucha juventud y personas muy reconocidas en el medio artístico como el Sr. Joel Someillan, que nos honro al conducir todo el show y ser parte del gran jurado al lado de nuestra querida amiga Gaby Borges y el talentoso Alan Matheus. Los tres fueron responsables de calificar a cada uno de los participantes. La tarea no fue nada fácil ya que todos hicieron un excelente trabajo pero como en todo concurso solo puede haber un ganador y el de este año fue Bryan Caro, siguiéndolo en segundo lugar Valeria Vega y en tercero Ana Patricia Oceguera.

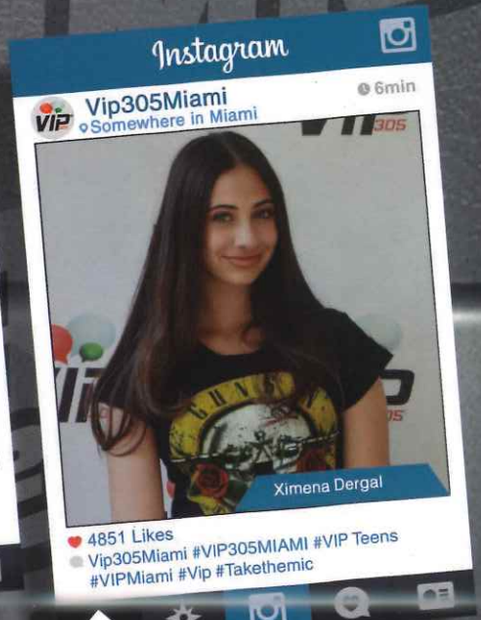

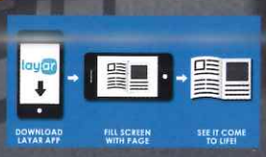

Ya han pasado unos cuantos meses del día del concurso, pero VIP305 no ha parado de trabajar con Bryan Caro y el productor Joel Someillan para cumplir con el Gran Premio !! La canción de Bryan ya está lista para salir oficialmente al mercado el día 18 de octubre y estará disponible en todas las plataformas. La canción que lleva de título " Spirit To My Reverie" fue escrita por Bryan y todo este proceso fue una gran experiencia para el. No sé pierdan nuestra próxima revista en la cual tendremos a Bryan Caro en la portada con una entrevista fenomenal y por supuesto no dejes de estar atento a la próxima llamada para El Segundo concurso de " Take The Mic " que tú podrías ser el próximo triunfador.

"Let's Talk." With Coach Evette Diaz.

What is The Reality Behind Parents and Their Expectations?

By Evette Diaz, Contributor

Let me just start this off by stating that above all things, in any relationship that you have in life, the most critical thought and feeling you should consistently hold in your mind and heart is to love and that you are loved.
I want to dedicate this article to the memory of Jose Fernandez and his loving example of what I am about to discuss with each of you! Be blessed and rest in peace Jose.

A Real Look at what's going on and Simple Things Everyone Can do To Make a Difference.

Expectations are not always a meant to be negative when coming from your parents. We live life through the many "filters" created by our experience. Knowing this is the basis of what I'm about to explain. For example: similar to glasses, these filters are what we are using to see the world and how life looks for us. Many expectations may come from these "filters" as lived by your parents or yourself! The expectation to be responsible for yourself may occur as an obvious way to behave. What you may want to consider is that there is something you are not responsible for. Perhaps you have a reason, and your parents are not aware of what you think or feel in those moments. Maybe you don't know what you're doing and need instruction. If you don't communicate with people, they are not 'mind readers' and won't have clarity about going on with you. Your parents do have an expectation which is fair in the grand scheme of things, and that is to own up to your part. They cannot truly control you to act responsibly. However, it is a fair expectation considering it is a character trait they know is one of the keys to succeeding in life. This character is best known as "INTEGRITY." The simple definition of integrity is The quality of being honest and fair. The state of being complete or whole. Without Integrity you are lost in the game of life. Life is game to be played entirely and heartfully. Otherwise, what pleasure will you have by not seeing what dreams you can make a reality? And how can you build on anything if you know for yourself that you weren't honest or responsible in the first place? Communication is key! To remove any or all doubts on both sides it is safe to say communicating is the key to clearing up and setting clear expectations around your responsibilities as well as how you would like to handle the tasks or circumstance at hand. Just work it out together!

Four unrealistic expectations that may be a great source of frustration for you and a little reality to go with it:

1) Your mood: You have every right to be in any mood, and the caveat is that you don't get to mistreat people due to your mood. Here's some age-old wisdom, "You are NOT your mood and do not hold the right to mistreat people due to any circumstance experienced." Have a chat with your parents about this; it's a teachable moment! I'm sure it will impress them and impact your relationship.

2) Making Mistakes: We all make mistakes, yes we are not perfect. Once a mistake is learned from, and you gain the experience or learn from the outcome. Well, let's just say you do not reserve the right to use that as a scapegoat. Remember, that making mistakes is a sure way to succeed and grow. I offer you a relevant Quote:

"Well, we all make mistakes, dear, so just put it behind you. We should regret our mistakes and learn from them, but never carry them forward into the future with us." L.M. Montgomery, Anne of Avonlea

3) 'You should know better' all the time, most people know this as "Being perfect." Much like mistakes, being perfect is one of those unhealthy expectations that many times you may place on yourself. Unfortunately, many parents may not be communicating the distinction between seeing you for your potential and encouraging you to see yourself for your greatness. Clarify the intention your parents have behind what you may perceive as you HAVE TO be "perfect." And define your version of perfection! You learn as you go and you are not alone. Your parents are there to guide you, and you can request their assistance.

4) "Get over it!" For this one, I will ask you a hypothetical question: Have you ever had an experience where you were upset at something that your parents said to you and it showed in the way you reacted? Only to encounter what seems to you like a 'get over it!' attitude or approach from your dear parents. I'm 38 years old, and I still deal with this at times! Talk out what you're thinking and don't just keep it inside. What may come out of this conversation may seem like an awkward and uncomfortable. I promise this may be life changing for everyone! Be mindful of this possibility: Your parents were possibly raised this way! Mom and dad maybe stayed quiet when they were in the same spot as you. Mostly for fear they may be crossing a line or disrespecting their parents. Perhaps in the same way that you may not even want to deal with them, they may have felt the same with their parents. Be compassionate and loving when you talk to mom and dad, they can mess up just as much as you can. Compassion is essential.

Always keep in mind that your parents are doing their best and the fears they may have come from the experiences they had at your age. Your parents share humanity with the rest of us. Most of us will pull from our past to either mimic what we thought was good or avoid what we judged as bad. Most of the times we want to compensate for what was missing in our life and make sure you never have to go through the same things. Think about it!

You may not always want to share the details about what is going on, just know that when you are ready to discuss anything they are usually your most reliable source for what you want to accomplish. Yes, your parents set high standards for you, and they are many times well intended. It is in your hands how you create your life and express it to your parents. They expect honesty from you as much as you expect it from them. If you feel inadequate from your parent's expectations, you will benefit from expressing this to them. By doing this, you may even help them be better parents to you! You may not change them, but you can make a difference in how everyone communicates. You can handle it!

Next Month I'll dive deeper into this subject and add a few tips for mom and dad too! Did this make a difference for you? I encourage you to write in with any corrections or comments in response to this column! (This is the point of creating this segment). It's all about you, be a part of this conversation!

Welcome Back Family Picnic...

On Sunday, September 18th, SBE held their second annual Welcome Back Family Picnic on our field. Our Navigator families enjoyed a bar-b-q lunch with refreshments. There were fun activities for all ages, music by DJ Fuego, and fun booths. Families brought tents, domino tables, and other games to play with fellow Navigators. This is our way of coming together as a community and welcoming all new families.

FASHION

Fashion Therapy

shopping with purpose

This venture is initially a consignment store for accessories, which is what Amanda loves the most. Her love for fashion and accessories was always present at an early age and as a young adult on the Autism Spectrum there are few options available to her once she finished high school. College was not a realistic avenue for her as she struggles with academics. As such, for her entrepreneurship seemed like a viable and perhaps her only option. However, we will never give up on her. She is an inspiration to all those who meet her.

So Fashion Therapy emerged as an idea, a dream that this could give Amanda purpose and foster her fashion dreams. She and I would be able to work together and she would have a sense of purpose. Moreover, I know there are others like her. Girls and boys who have Autism but Autism does not have them. As the business grows, we could employ more young adults on the Spectrum and promote/sell their art as well in our store. There are so many children on the Autism Spectrum who have amazing artistic abilities. All proceeds from sale of their art would go to them or to their designated charity to assist with their various therapies.

Amanda also wants to be able to express herself through her blog; theabledfashionista.com. This blog will track her journey as a fashionista with Autism who has her own business and her own mind. She is familiar with various fashion designers and enjoys their shows. Her point of view is "Chanel" meets "Elizabeth and James" with a bit of bohemian thrown in. Plus, there's also the tomboy, Converse girl in there.

BLUE MISSIONS GROUP

A letter from the CEO

Dear BLUE friend,

I am writing on a return flight home from the Dominican Republic. As I reflect on the projects completed in 2016, my mind keeps wandering to my first water project, which took place exactly 10 years ago. It was then that I met 2 individuals that still remain in my heart and mind today.

Rafael is the hardest worker I have ever met. He made swinging a pick ax look like Simone Biles competing at the Olympics. Dripping in sweat but always wearing a smile, day in and day out. He was determined to improve the quality of life for his wife and children. This mental image will forever be in my heart and mind and motivate me to strive for excellence and do whatever it takes, with a smile on my face.

Leodi was your average 8 year old boy with a pet beetle which he kept in a drawer in his living room. Each day, he looked forward to playing with his beetle and feeding it a few grains of rice and beans. It was his escape. An escape from his reality where fetching water for his family was more important than attending school. But he didn't see it that way. He was just doing what he's done his entire life. Living a simple life so that his family could simply live. He too, like Rafael, wore a permanent smile that brightened everyone's day.

Their smiles are the definition of true happiness. These smiles are so contagious that he passed it along to me, and since that day, my purpose in life has been to share that with the world by Building Love and Uniting Everyone. This year BLUE was able to more than double its impact, year over year, increasing projects from 9 in 2015 to 21 in 2016. Service trips were facilitated for 397 volunteers, an increase of nearly 200 volunteers from last year.

These numbers are important for countless reasons but I'll focus on just two.

We at BLUE believe that clean water and sanitation should be a right for all who live on our planet. Two of our most basic needs are still absent in the lives of so many individuals all over the world. Approximately 663 million people don't have access to clean water, which comes out to 1 in every 10 people. This means about 2 times the population of the United States does not have access to clean water. Researching sanitation, the numbers do not get any better. 1 Billion people across the globe lack this basic need. One Billion people in the world must use public toilets or practice open-air defecation. That is not dignity. Imagine being an 8 year-old child in a small rural community living without a safe, sanitary, private facility to use the bathroom. Imagine being one of the few kids in school who has to practice open-air defecation.

This is not dignity. Slowly but surely, BLUE is rewriting this story in many rural communities. In 2016, 201 ventilated improved pit latrines were constructed in 12 villages throughout the Dominican Republic.

With love and gratitude,

Nothing better than start the school year with a prayer:

Dear God, thank you for the gift of education in every form. As our children prepare to start a new year may confidence be their foundation, may grace be their guide and may hope be their compass toward a bright future.
I pray they would have eyes to see the needs of those around them and a heart to love well. May they face each day with positivity knowing that no matter what comes their way, they do not have to face it alone. Amen.

at Ronald MacDonald Charity House

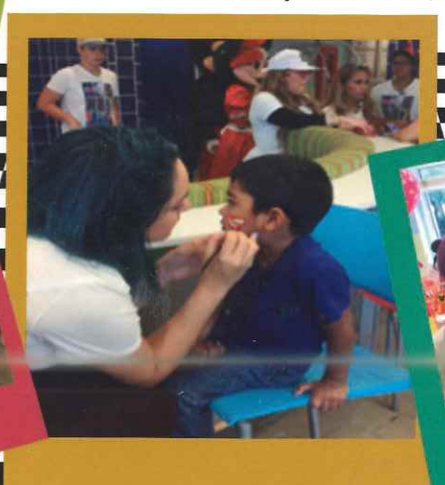

Last August 2nd, 2016 students from Christopher Columbus and Saint Brendan's High School 's inspire On Bryan Fernandez-Cornejo's story an autistic young men who has developed a wonderful way of painting beautiful art pieces. These students wanted to celebrate Bryan's birthday at the Ronald McDonald Charity House and combine it with the birthday's of those children at the house at that time. The idea was to provide some happiness to the ill children who might have not been able to celebrate their Birthdays.

There were Magicians, Mickey and Minnie, volunteers painted the children's faces, great food,parents, teachers and therapists.Bryan and the children had a wonderful time with the volunteer students who gave their time to prepare the place and entertain these children that otherwise would not have had such a great celebration.It was a day full of happiness participating in the magician's act and making their parents happy.The Volunteer students helped in the preparation of the place and after all was finished with the Cleaning of the hall where this celebration took place.Once the day was over the Ariane González from WWFE Poderosa Radio Station invited the students to be at her station and relate to the audience such a wonderful project.

The students who participated on this great day were Sebastian Fernandez-Cornejo the Leader,Christian Berry, Alexandria and Alexia Rivero.

Biografía

Also known as the Rivas Family, The H Group (El Grupo H) is a very special musical band since it consists of the father, mother and their three children. Throughout its many years of experience, the band has recorded 7 albums (available on iTunes, Amazon, Spotify, GooglePlay and more) and traveled around the world to deliver its music and its message. "Sigue Tu Camino" (Continue Your Path) is the band's newest single. It is a salsa song charged with rhythm, Latin flavor and a powerful message.

HAROL RIVAS, the father, is the director, arranger, composer, sound engineer, pianist and music producer of the group.

HELENA RIVAS, the mother, is a background vocalist, the coordinator, manager, graphic designer and executive producer of the group. She is a composer of more than 100 beautiful songs, some of which have been recorded by Hellen Rivas & El Grupo H

HELLEN RIVAS, lead singer, is the eldest daughter of Helena and Harol. Hellen has many years of experience since she launched her career when she was 2 years old and appeared in a television show for the first time. At the young age of 20, she earned her Bachelor's degree in broadcast journalism with highest honors from Florida International University (FIU). Hellen is a singer, arranger and composer, journalist, TV host, and music teacher who plays 9 musical instruments.

THE H GROUP – RIVAS FAMILY in addition to its musical work, plays a commendable social work through Pink H Foundation, a non-profit organization created and led by them to help children and low-income families. Since its initiation in 2005, Pink H. Foundation has benefited thousands of people via motivational talks and six humanitarian missions where toys, clothes, shoes, athletic uniforms, music, musical instruments and school supplies have been provided to those in need. With the sale of their music, which contains a positive message, The H Group not only nourishes the spirit of its audience but also supports the humanitarian work carried out
